

1_ Quick to take advantage of Melanie Johnson's preoccupation in the history of the Johnson family, the genealogist proposed investigating that history for a large fee. No error

2_ Contrasting with most other fifteenth-century rulers, Portuguese Kings could count on the support of the aristocracy in any overseas ventures. No error

3_ Intense preoccupation on technique appears to be the one trait that great pianists have in common. No error

4_ One challenge that writer Eleanor Wong Telemaque faced was how preserving her ethnic identity while becoming more accessible to readers who are not accustomed to writers from other cultural background. No error.

5_ The new system, which uses remote cameras in the catching of speeding motorists, many undermine the police department's authority. No error.

6_ Although the politician was initially very sensitive to be criticized by the press, he quickly became more confident about responding to reporters' sometimes pointed questions. No error.

7_ In the opinion of the lecturer, a background in the history of the Middle Ages is not a condition necessary in the enjoyment of medieval literature. No error

8_ Malaria, a disease which has been almost completely eradicated in United States, is still a threat of travelers in some foreign countries. No error

9_ John Edgar Wideman is regarded to be one of the most talented writers of the late twentieth century and is often compared to such literary giants as Ralph Ellison and Richard Wright. No error

10_ Given her strong sense of social justice, Burns vehemently protested over her party's failure to support a tax decrease for senior citizens. No error

11_ Far away from having been a diehard conservative, Hoover was, some scholars now contend, the leading progressive of his day. No error.

12_ Alerted by the nervousness and evasiveness of the witness, the jurors were quick to perceive that his statements were inconsistent to those he had made earlier. No error.

13_ Listening at the first song their lead singer ever wrote, the band members did not foresee that this young man would be responsible for bringing them to the attention of the world. No error.

14_ The survey showed that most shoppers who drive prefer the mall more than downtown stores simply because finding parking is less difficult at the mall. No error.

15_ The illustrated books by Dr. Seuss have managed keeping youngsters and adults alike entertained for several decades. No error.